FROM OUR PASTOR

DEAR FRIENDS IN CHRIST-

What does it mean for Christ to sit in the synagogue and open the scroll? It means that a new era is upon us. A new way of living. Much like Ezra and Nehemiah, who in the Old Testament restore the Temple and find the Law buried, Jesus Christ restores us by His Word. After the Babylonian exile, when the Israelites were forced into a foreign land for decades, away from the Temple, away from their traditions, under persecution from their overlords, they had a sacred duty to pass on the faith of Abraham to their children. Their culture was destroyed, their language was not spoken in this foreign land, the sacrifice of the Temple ceased, and all they could have was makeshift synagogues or places to study what would've been physically left of the Scripture. It is here, in this foreign land, where their sacred vessels are used for common drinking by their persecutors, where God is roundly mocked and where finally, they are set free after several generations. And when they return, they enter into the ruins of what was formerly the Temple.

In Western Civilization, formed by the Latin Rite Catholic Church, with all of her ritual celebrations, language, and cult of the saints, the rhythm of her ancient calendar and lectionary cycle, we find ourselves today, one might say, in a similar situation. Rare is the parish that uses the sacred language of Latin (which hung upon the cross and is consecrated). The cadences of the Latin language sadly are foreign and alien to the modern Catholic. The rhythm of Catholic home life which was informed dutifully by the cult of the saints and the liturgical year in the Middle Ages seems to mean so little to the modern Christian, save Lent, Easter and Christmas. Is it not our sacred duty as parents, educators in the Faith, to unfurl the scroll, to read the Law anew once again and to weep? And then after weeping, to proclaim with the zeal of the Spirit of the Lord what we have found? The Ancient Jewish people did this. They rebuilt a glorious Temple, they lit the menorah again, studied the Law, and salvaged what they could from their parents and grandparents who remembered the glory of Solomon's Temple. They recalled their sacred song, their sacred language and all that they had kept from their time in Exile and they passed it on to their children. No darkness was too dark to extinguish their culture. Neither should any darkness or lack of imagination be too dark for us for the Light of Christ, the Light of Christianity, the Culture of Christianity is too bright to ever be extinguished.

Fr. Schneider
